Description: The new rapid-response service provides responses to urgent requests from Canadian policymakers and stakeholder for evidence about health-system challenges, and it complements existing programs targeted at other domains such as health technologies. The turnaround is three-, 10- or 30—business days, in the form of a rapid (knowledge) synthesis. This webinar will examine the features of the rapid-response service as illustrated by work in Ontario, how to reach the McMaster Health Forum about setting up a similar program in other Canadian provinces and territories, and how to submit a request for your immediate needs.
